Selected Bibliography
on the Global Crisis of Internal Displacement
by Gimena Sánchez-Garzoli

December 2001

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

The idea for this bibliography on the global crisis of internal displacement arose in preparation for a course on internal displacement designed by Francis Deng at the City University Graduate Center of New York.

Although the study of internal displacement is a relatively new one, substantial materials have emerged which are important to bring together and catalog. The attached compilation makes selections from materials available in English with several noteworthy publications in Spanish included as well. It is divided into both thematic and geographic categories. It is intended to prove useful to both scholars and practitioners interested in gaining a better understanding of internal displacement and the national, regional and international strategies being developed to address the needs of those displaced.

We are most grateful to Gimena Sánchez-Garzoli, Research Analyst at the Brookings-CUNY Project on Internal Displacement, for preparing this bibliography. The author would be pleased to receive from readers any additional materials that they believe should be included since a future edition of this bibliography will be prepared.

The author wishes to thank Roberta Cohen for her substantive editorial contribution and guidance. Thanks too go to Erin Mooney and Simon Bagshaw for their comments and additions. Assistance was also provided by Hilary Talley, Galit Wolfensohn, Marianne Makar, Shigehero Suzuki, Philip Orchard and Merja Jutila of the Brookings-CUNY Project. The author is grateful to the various non-governmental and international organizations that assisted this project as well.
